There was no question that the man was from the "rooral destrict," for one could almost see the hayseed in his unshorn locks, and his pockets were apparently bulging with corn husks. The stranger had no more than seated himself when a well dressed, smart looking young man entered and took a seat at the same table. He also ordered a steak. In due time they were served. The countryman went to work industriously and was soon enjoying his meal. Not so his vis-a-vis. The young man complained that his meat was tough-tough as sole leather,

"How's yours, stranger?" he asked.
"Mine's all right," was the reply, with a nasal twang.

But try as he would the young fellow couldn't induce the other to talk with him. Finally he said it was a shame to serve such a steak. He declared he believed the cook had wiped the floor with it, it was so full of grit.

The stranger looked up, and fixing a piercing gray eye on the young man "If Byrkes knew you were down Thursday Sept. 12, quietly but significantly remarked: here, you would be eating worse steak

COUNT ITO'S HEROIC WIFE. Dragged by the Hair, She Would Not Be tray Her Lover.

Of Count Ito, the distinguished Japanese statesman, Sir Edwin Arnold gives this interesting incident: "I sat at table with the ex-premier and his wife and children. The counters, quiet, gentle, motherly and wearing spectacles, carving the tai and the kamo with such matronly serenity? had yet a history of romance and devotion which could make the wildest fictionist's fortune.

"Long ago in those dark and bloody days when the minister was her lover and a fugitive from his enemies there came a time when they had tracked him to her house and had chosen a band of Soshis to assassinate him. The noise of their clogs and the rattling of their scabbards were heard, and the count, who would become teachers either for self-sup port or charitable work. CERTIFICETE GIVEN trapped like a stag in his mountain pleasance, drew his Bizen blade and prepared to die as a Japanese lord should amid a circle of dead foes. But while he murmured 'Saganore!' and knitted station, from 9 until 1. he murmured 'Saganore!' and knitted his fingers around the shark skin hilt of his sword that brave lady whose guest I was whispered: 'Do not die. There is hope still.' Upon which she removed the hibachi, or firebox, over which they were sitting, and lifting up the matting and planks beneath induced her lover to conceal himself in the hollow space which exists under the floor of all Japanese homes. The murderers broke into the room, a ferocious band, just as the Particular firebox had been replaced, and the countess had assumed a position of nonchalance.

"They demanded their victim, and when she protested against their intrusion and bade them search if they wanted Ito, the wretches dragged her MISS LILLIAN BAXTER, around the apartment by her long, beautiful black hair, now touched with silver, and grievously maltreated her, Will but could not shake her resolute fidelity. Thanks to this, Count Ito, the hero of many another strange adventure, escaped from the chief peril of his career CLASSES IN BLOOMFIELD & NEWARK and has lived to give his country a new constitution and to be one of the foremost and best respected statesmen of modern Japan."

Brooch and Chatelaine The day of the brooch and chatelaine for watches is over. The watch chain again asserts itself. Watches no longer DANCING LESSONS. swing from enameled flowers or jew-eled bars. Instead they are hidden away in a watch pocket, and a black silk cord or a narrow ribbon is their main support. Old fashioned broad gold as time goes on they probably will be. shades are considered the proper thing. Summer girls, however, are substituting for the gold watch chain a narrow satin ribbon which matches in color the gown with which it is worn. A few exceedingly fine gold chains are seen.

The Rock Island railroad has adopted an excellent plan to test the honesty of its conductors. They were informed that spotters would no longer be employed on the road and that the money thus saved would be applied to an increase in the wages of the conductors. The plan is said to be working to the entire Millinery and Dressmaking satisfaction of both the company and those directly affected.—Philadelphia

The Primitive Gun. As soon as the forces of the explosive der became known the old style weapons disappeared, and firearms took their places. The first of the kind was a small gun barrel fastened to a long pole and fired with a slow match. Shot stones, balls of lead, iron bolts and fireballs to set buildings on fire were propelled with this apparatus. Only a short distance could be shot with these primitive guns.
